THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 11, 1879.

The Greenbackers ought to begin to realize that by their foolish third-party covement they are only cutting their own throats, and playing into the hands of the Republicans. The Republican party is the party of rings, of monometalists and of monopoly. The Democratic party is the party in opposition to this party, and all the votes which the Greenbackers take from them are simply so many negative votes in favor of the Republican party. If they really desire to ameliorate the financial condition of the country they can best do it by abandoning their party and helping the Democracy. The result in California and Maine ought to be sufficient to convince them of this.

The reverses which have thus early in the canvass this year set in against the Democrats may not be unprofitable, as they will probably force the nomination of a better ticket than can be otherwise obtained by the Democratic party in the State of New York, from their convention which is now in session. Unless the Tammany and Anti-Tammany parties can be united, Cornell will be elected and this fact will probably secure the selection of some conservative Democrat who can lead the party to victory. If New York and Ohic can be reclaimed to the Democracy, then our chances will be greatly improved for next year. In the latter State the contest will be very close, with chances rather against Gen. Ewing at present. Thurman, Hendricks and other prominent speakers, however, are soon to take part in the canvass, and their influence may very greatly improve his chances. At any rate, the reverses just met with will spur up the Democrats to their uttermost capacity, and will give them, it is to hoped, both in New York and Ohio a little of the prudence they so

The Republicans have had a great victory in California, electing Perkins Governor over Dr. Glenn, Democrat, and the working men's candidate. They have also elected all four Congressmen, and a majority of the Legislature. This is the result of bad management and improper nominations on the part of the California Democrats. Dr. Glenn is a large land-owner and planter, having some forty thousand acres of land in cultivation by about six hundred Chinese laborers, and thus was personally obnoxious to the working men, who voted against him, but would have voted with the Democrats on a judicious nomination. No party ever had a better opportunity to succeed than the Democrats of California had in this contest, and they can only attribute their own defeat and the injury they have done the party in the United States to their open defiance of a well-defined public sentiment which there was no reason for them to antagonize. If, however, the leaders of the National Democratic party can be made to realize that they cannot defy public opinion by running unpopular or weak men for office, and induced to seek none but the ablest and purest standardbearers, the lesson, though a dearly bought one, may prove profitable in the end. It is now absolutely necessary, as tion should be thrown into the House of Representatives, the Republicans would elect their candidate, as the delegations in Congress vote by States, and the result in California gives the Republicans a majority in votes taken by this method. This is an additional reason why we should throw away our favorites as candidates, and only select the strongest and most irreproachable candidates. The Republicans have carried the State of Maine with a majority over both the Democrats and the Greenbackers. This result shows that in the Northern States the Republicans are stronger than ever, and their prospects for carrying the Presidential election next year are improving considerably. The Democrats have backed down so often and so palpably that there is very little enthusiasm left for the party in those States where another party can be found which will half way do. We elected a President three years ago but declined to secure his inauguration, because the other party objected and we thought it best to yield our rights and appeal to the country. Then again last year, when Congress chose to exercise the well established right to grant supplies under such wholesome regulations as were deemed prudent, and the two parties could not agree upon the conditions, the Democratic party forced an extra session to secure the end in view, and then again backed down before the Presidential vetoes, on the ground that they could appeal to the country. These appeals to the country are not very gratifying. The country sends its representatives to Congress to act for it, and when those representatives are too timid to attend to the country's business, that country is very apt to try another set of agents, who are both able and willing to perform the duties for which they have been elected without constantly having to appeal to the people. We have had too much conciliation on the part of the Democratic party. It is time for a little aggression, if we have any idea of success in 1880. By aggression we do not mean rashness, but we should maintain our principles in the face of opposition. We should do right and appeal to the country then to sustain us. Heretofore we have yielded the right and asked to be sustained, and the result has been a weakening of our party and encouragement and strengthening of the Repub-

- Hon. Elihu B. Washburn, ex-minister to France, is quoted as saying that he received a letter recently from Gen. Grant, in which he declares that in his Presidential term of eight years he has Presidential term of eight years he has received whatever honor attaches to the position, and that he does not desire to be President again, and does not conceive of any possible circumstance which could induce him to consent to be a candidate. The Rev. Dr. Newman, also a personal friend of the ex-President, is quoted as saying that the General writes him that he does not want to be President again. As a consequence Dr. Newman has declared his preference for ex-minister Washburne as the Republican candidate for President.

The recent excursion to Charleston has esulted very satisfactorily to the business nen of that city, and will no doubt inluce a repetition of the inducement for merchants from the country to visit Charleston. If this course is pursued, we think many of our business men can be induced to replenish their stocks by visits to Charleston, where they can se lect their own goods instead of buying from drummers from other cities. If the old fogy ideas of a few men who have controlled business there can be gotten rid of, and the merchants will realize to the full extent, as they are beginning to do, that they must court trade instead of an enviable commercial activity. Speakchants that the excursion from the up-country has tended to open the fall trade in a manner which promises a brisk busi-ness during the balance of the season. Meeting, Hayne and East Bay streets, ness during the balance of the season. Mecting, Hayne and East Bay streets, which a week ago gave little or no evidence of activity, have sprung into life so suddenly as almost to take away the breath from the proprietors and employecs, who have been doing little more than keeping themselves cold during the summer. Boxes and bales of goods, ready for shipment, lie piled up on the sidewalks, and yesterday the buyers were busily engaged in running up other bills. This rush of business will probably last for three or four days longer, and it is hoped that the purchasers will be so well pleased with their reception from the merchants that they will not only never go to any other market themselves, but will do nuch good by advertising the advantages of this market among their friends. The hotels have every reason to be pleased by the results of the excursion, and it is roughly estimated that from $40,000 to $50,000 will be left in Charleston. The New York Republican State Conrention met at Saratoga on the 3rd inst.,

and organized by electing Roscoe Conkling President. The following persons were nominated for State officers: For Governor, A. B. Cornell; Lieutenant Governor, George G. Hoskins, of Yyoming; Comptroller, James W. Wadsworth, of Livingston; Secretary of State, General Joseph B. Caw, of Rensslear; State Treasurer, Nathan D. Wendell, of Albany. The platform attacks State rights, arraigns the South and condemns anything except gold as a currency. In other words, the platform and the persons nominated on it are the dictation of Conkling. Mr. Cornell, the nominee for Governor, is the individual who was ousted from the New York Custom House by President Hayes, after a hard struggle with Conkling, and his nomination at this time is a cut at the President by his party in New York. Mr. Cornell's father was one of the originators of the telegraph lines, and amassed great wealth therefrom, which has descended to his son, whose chief distinction is due to the fight made over his removal last winter. This Convention shows, first, that Mr. Hayes is not in sympathy with the Republicans of New York, and next, that Mr. Conkling is strong enough to hold his grasp on public affairs there in spite of the Sprague scandal and the developments it has made as to his morals. The nomination is considered a strong one, because it will compel Mr. Conkling to enter actively into the canvass, and his personal influence, it is thought, will amount to thousands of votes in the State. This result means an opposition to the nomination of Sherman for President, and a preference for Grant or Conkling on the part of New York Rethe House of Representatives stands at publicans. It forebodes no good to the present, to elect our President by a vote | country, and shows very great sympathy of the people next year, for if the elec- towards licentiousness on the part of the party of "great moral ideas"

> The Democratic party in the United States is the most completely bridled institution we have ever seen. The great masses of the party prefer the success of their principles to any personal advantage, and if left free would pursue such a course as to ensure victory by nominating candidate who would arouse the fire of patriotism and the enthusiasm of true manhood from Maine to Texas in his support. Instead of this, however, the whole question of nominations is controlled by a set of politicians who wish their party to succeed, but are willing to imperil that success for the sake of having some candidate placed before the people who will be subservient to their interests or personal aims. This has been the bane of our party for years, and now threatens us with another defeat. Every person admits that Senator Bayard can be elected President if nominated. and yet there are three or four others who have superior prospects, because they are more popular with the politicians who think they can use them for some selfish purpose. It is time for the people who want a change of administration more than they want the elevation of any particular man, to take control of the nomination and give it to a man who can be elected and will be the President of the whole people, and thus restore the government to its former glory and purity. There are several men in our party who can do this, but pre-eminent among them is the Delaware Senator, whose high personal character and pure life, a Christian character, exalted attainments and well-established patriotism. With his name at the Democratic masthead, success will perch upon our banner; without it, the future before us s dark and unknown.

— The papers say that Senator Roscoe Conkling has only visited his home, at Utica, at long intervals and at brief periods since his last election. His wife, a sister of ex-Governor Seymour, and a most estimable and accomplished lady, lives in strict retirement. His late neglect to attend his daughter's wedding has stirred up considerable gossip. Roscoe is evidently a bad man, utterly devoid of principle, with no love for his family, and his wife ought to quit him.

The Meeting of the State Board of Exam iners-What they Did and what they Declined to Do.

Columbia Register, September 4 The State Board of Examiners closed its session yesterday.

During their two days' sitting they dis During their two days' sitting they dis-cussed fully the operations of the present school law, and decided, after careful de-liberation, not to recommend any changes in it at this time, it being their opinion that all necessary changes in its operations can be made under the gener-al authority given to the State Board of Examiners under the school law. Con-Examiners under the school law. Considering that the present law is beginning to be understood throughout the State, and the people becoming familiar with its provisions, no advantage was to be gained by changing it. Some of the obstacles in the way of an efficient public school system are to be found in the obstacles in the way of an efficient public school system are to be found in the Constitution of the State. These, of course, cannot be removed by the Legislature, and the board were of opinion that the present school law was well adapted to the present condition of things. The board were satisfied, however, that the annual examination of the large number of teachers in the public schools of the State requires more labor of the of the State requires more labor of the county board of examiners than those gentlemen should be expected to perform without compensation. In view of the high character of the gentlemen forming those boards and for the purpose of retaining their services, it was pose of retaining their services, it was decided to make the following order with

The board also yesterday, as advertised, held an examination of applicants for teachers' State certificates. Four applicants/presented themselves—one white and three colored—and after a rigid examination, certificates were granted to them. The examination included algebra, natural philosophy and physiology, and the board express themselves as much pleased with the proficiency exhibited by the candidates. The good results produced by the persistent efforts of the board to raise the standard of scholarship among teachers have already been seen throughout the State, and it is believed that the action of the State Board with regard to the issuing of certificates will, while it relieves the County Boards of much unnecessary work, excite an increased spirit of emulation among teachers to obtain the higher grades of certificates.

Recent Duel Near Camden.

Correspondence News and Courier. CAMDEN, September 3.

Since an account of the recent duel nea Since an account of the recent duel near Camden has been put before the public attention, I will ask sufficient space in your paper to give a correct account of the affair. Of the controversy between Capt. T. H. Clark, editor of the Camden Journal, and Col. Wm. M. Shannon I have nothing to say further than to refer the public to that controversy, the record of which is on file in the offices of the county newspapers. A duel was actually fourth. Notice is hereby given that the un-dersigned, Administrator of the Estate of John Barr Robinson, deceased, will apply to the Judge of Probate for Anderson County, is on file in the offices of the county newspapers. A duel was actually fought, as stated in the article to which I refer, but that Capt. Clark and Mr. Charles Shannon were personal friends is not correct, and that the seconds on account of the previous relations of the parties and the nature of the dispute agreed that there should be but one shot, is on the 14th day of October, 1879, for a Final Settlement and discharge from said Estate. J. T. ASHPEY, Adm'r. Sept 11, 1879 and the nature of the dispute agreed that there should be but one shot, is equally incorrect. The weapons used were revolvers, to be loaded one shot at a time, fired and reloaded. The distance was ten (10) paces instead of twenty (20) as was stated. In short the duel was fought under the "Code of Honor" with exception of weapons, Mr. Clark using improved Smith & Wesson army pistol. Mr. Shappon Colt's improved pistol. Charlotte Air Line Railway, in this State, and for an extension of the same to Ashe-ville, N. C., or power to connect with any Read at Engley. Mr. Shannon Colt's improved pistol, (Peacomaker.) It was understood between the friends that the firing should continue until one of the principals was disabled. This would have been carried into effect except for the interference of Road at Easley. Just as the sec-onds were about to load for another ex-change of shots several prominent gen-tlemen, who had learned the place of the duel, appeared on the ground and by their decision put a stop to the firing, without even attempting to bring about any reconciliation, and here the matter rests. In conclusion and in justice to Col. Shannon I will state that the interference of Mr. Charles Shannon was entirely without his knowledge or approval. Col. Shannon having three grows sons, endeavored in every way to prevent their taking any action in this matter, and did not know of the challenge being sent until next day when all preliminated being aranged. ries had been aranged.

who intended to turn him over to the authorities on reaching town. Brown managed to get loose twice while the boat was in motion; the first time he was caught just after reaching the shore, but the second time, before assistance could reach him, he was drowned, his hands being tied. A jury of inquest viewed the body, and adjourned without final action.

At the time Brown jumped overboard the "Hampton" bad the steamer "Mary Ellen" in tow at the side, with not more than two feet space between the two boats. The engineer and all the witnesses testified as to the likelihood of the wheel striking him and bruising him. But the colored jury think differently, and expect to hold the Captain responsible.

When we went into the Court House on Thursday we saw fourteen colored men ranged on the bench, looking as solemn as Harvey Jones ever did in his palmiest days. The inquest was a complete farce; the jury were prejudiced, and seemed to think that Capt. Fulton had murdered deceased. The jury had to be called to order several times by the coroner, at the suggestion of a law-by the coroner, at the suggestion of a law-yer, who was a witness to the proceedings. Every witness detailed the above story, ex-actly as related by us; yet the jury agreed on a verdict of murder, (which would have consigned Capt. Fulton to a cell without the benefit of bail,) and was only prevented from rendering their verdict by some one proposing a post morten examination of the deceased, which was agreed to, and the jury adjourned.

Since writing the above we learn from the coroner that the jury of inquest have rendered a verdict declaring that Brown, the deceased, came to his death at the hands of deceased, came to his death at the hands of Capt. Fulton. The jury, as above stated, was composed of a set of prejudiced and illiterate negroes, and they seem to have given their verdict independent entirely of the evidence produced at the coroner's inquest. There was not one jot or tittle of evidence to justify the crime of murder being laid to the charge of Capt. Fulton, because all the witnesses who were examined were unanimous in testifying that Brown jumped into the river and thereby drowned himself. Of course, Capt. Fulton will have to yield to the inexorable decree of the law
